
Recordsforce Announces Deployment of Cloud Based Production and Quality Management System for Service Bureaus

BPS 1.0 provides complete service bureau production management capabilities.

PORTSMOUTH, NH (December 21, 2010) – Recordsforce, Inc., a leading provider of intelligent document management solutions throughout the northeastern United States, announced today that it has developed and successfully deployed the inaugural version of its cloud-based production fulfillment system, BPS.

In use by Recordsforce since September, 2010, BPS provides Recordsforce the means to manage, record, track, and measure all the steps involved with the provision of its document scanning and records management fulfillment services for its family of clients. This release includes complete quality control and CAPA capabilities, monitoring changes in work instructions and procedures, pushing updated training information to employees before allowing them to perform the impacted functions. Forthcoming release slated for 2011 will include end-customer access and a financial tracking module.

“Ensuring the integrity and proper fulfillment of our clients’ records are top priorities for Recordsforce,” stated Bill Becker, President & CEO. “With BPS, we can now lock-in and drive even stronger compliance with our Quality Control Program. This functionality could stand on its own as a win for our clients. Add in real-time process visibility and a slew of other features that are slated for 2011, and BPS will be a valuable tool for Recordsforce and its family of customers for many years to come.”
