

Putnam Investments selects Recordsforce for Outsourced Document Imaging and Records Management

Solution provides web-based document access and records management services.

PORTSMOUTH, NH (November 11, 2005) – Recordsforce, Inc., a New England headquartered provider of outsourced solutions for document-intensive business processes, announced today that it has executed a multi-year agreement with Putnam Investments, the Boston-based global money management company, to provide document imaging and records management services. Included in the agreement, Putnam is utilizing the FileBound™ Enterprise Content Management System, developed by the Marex Group, to store and retrieve their digital records.

Under the terms of the agreement, Recordsforce collects, scans, indexes, and stores Putnam's records for electronic retrieval. Custom capabilities such as partitioned record access based on user-driven permission and document content are being utilized. Recordsforce services involve the monthly processing of tens of thousands of financial and human resources documents, as well as other corporate records. Additionally, Recordsforce has deployed PGP encryption and other custom security measures to meet Putnam's specific needs.

"We are pleased that our solution was such a good fit with Putnam," noted Michael Dailey, Vice President of Recordsforce. "Their willingness to sign a multi-year agreement provides further validation of our approach to this marketplace. All of our document management solutions are truly unique, as they directly reflect each client's specific and differing needs. That is our strength – the ability to deliver a custom solution for each of our clients' unique document management challenges."
