

Recordsforce Triples Facility Footprint, establishes Production Second Shift

Exponential growth & future needs required expansion of office & staffing

PORTSMOUTH, NH (February 8, 2007) – Recordsforce, Inc., a New England headquartered provider of outsourced solutions for document-intensive business processes, announced today that it has signed an agreement with its landlord to triple its production facility area from 3,000 square feet to 9,000 square feet.

"We're on the grow!" quips company president, Bill Becker. "With the phenomenal success we've experienced to date, we have outgrown our existing location. While scouring the area for a place to move the operation, the office adjacent ours was vacated, a facility two-times the size of our current one. This made for a win-win: we can continue our production operation without interruption while we establish our expanded presence right next door."

Concurrent with this footprint enlargement, Recordsforce has initiated a second-shift for its production needs.

"We always plan to be one step ahead of our customer's needs," cites Katja Becker, director of operations at Recordsforce. "In today's hectic 'ASAP' business environment, our clients require virtually immediate access to their scanned records, and we comply with turn-arounds as fast as 24-48 hours. To continue to accommodate such tight timeframes with our ever growing list of clients, adding a permanent second shift only made sense.

"This production space expansion and evening shift addition has poised Recordsforce to best handle its growth in 2007 and well beyond," added Ms. Becker. "But what excites me most about these changes is we are able to implement them while continuing to provide our current clients the high levels of service and quality that they have come to expect from Recordsforce."
